Kumho Petrochemical

Solid 3Q25 results, entering a seasonally weak 4Q25

Maintain Hold and TP of W117,000

We maintain our Hold rating and target price of W117,000 for Kumho Petrochemical. The competitive landscape in the NBL (nitrile butadiene latex) market remains challenging, limiting near-term profitability improvement, while the phenol derivatives business is likely to post a loss for a third consecutive quarter. On a positive note, the synthetic rubber segment demonstrated cost-driven margin improvement in 2Q25, and the precision chemicals/energy/others division continues to deliver solid margins in the 20% range despite declining SMP prices. We plan to revisit our rating and target price once there is clearer visibility on earnings improvement or a concrete share price catalyst.

3Q25 review: In line with consensus

Kumho Petrochemical reported operating profit of W84.4bn for 3Q25, in line with the consensus estimate of W84.3bn and up 30% QoQ. The improvement was driven by a recovery in profitability at the synthetic rubber division, which posted operating profit of W31.2bn (OP margin of 4.9%), up 267% QoQ. Rubber earnings benefited from: (1) cost savings stemming from lower butadiene prices, and (2) reduced losses in the NBL business. These gains helped offset weakness in the phenol derivatives division (operating loss of W14.4bn), which was affected by scheduled maintenance work. The energy segment also improved in both revenue and profitability, as higher sales volumes more than offset lower prices.

4Q25 preview: Seasonally weak quarter; earnings recovery expected from 1Q26

We forecast 4Q25 operating profit at W58bn, down 31% QoQ. While overall earnings are likely to remain largely unchanged from 3Q25, operating profit at the rubber division is expected to decline to around W10bn (from W31.2bn in 3Q25), reflecting the impact of regular maintenance and seasonal weakness.

That said, we expect operating profit to recover to W95.8bn in 1Q26. Despite ongoing competition in the NBL market, conditions should improve once the off-season passes, given the division's successful margin recovery in 2Q25. Additionally, the new SSBR expansion plant—scheduled to begin operations in 4Q25—should support profitability from 1Q26 by improving product mix. SSBR (solution styrene-butadiene rubber), a high-performance rubber used in electric vehicle tires, offers superior fuel efficiency, wear resistance, and wet traction performance.
